

SOCIETY

The Red Cross Ball.

Of course, the Red Cross ball was the premier social event of the week. Everyone knew that it would be when such an affair was broadcast, for everyone is supporting the Red Cross morally and it only remained for them to be asked to make them support it financially. Beside a number of Albuquerque's "best people" are leaders in the Red Cross movement and that made it quite socially all right.

There was no one who could not afford to be there, speaking either socially or financially, and so, of course, everyone was there or at least bought a few tickets. The army was donated to the Red Cross society; the music was donated by forty union musicians, a good half of whom played each number and decorations were donated or borrowed. A number of local business houses donated material for refreshments. The electric light company donated electricity for lighting.

The dance program was prepared by a committee of union musicians who saw to it that each number was arranged to provide the greatest amount of good music suited to that particular dance.

The crowd was on hand early and stayed late, and although the side of tables had been very heavy, there were enough non-dancers attending and enough who bought tickets who did not attend, to keep the floor from being more than comfortably crowded.

The committee in charge followed decorations.

Country Club Dance.

One of the regular club dances was held at the Country club last night, with a goodly number of members and their friends attending.

Apprentices' Ball.

Unique in several respects was the first annual ball of the Santa Fe apprentices held Thursday evening at the Masonic temple. The ball was one of the most interesting affairs that has been held in the city in many months. It was a formal affair attended by about fifty couples. The guests included only Santa Fe apprentices and graduates of the apprenticeship school at the local Santa Fe establishment.

The programs were distinctly out of the ordinary. They were blueprints made by the apprentices from a draft made by others of their number. The front cover bore a sketch of an engine "front end" with the Santa Fe emblem beneath. The back cover bore an attractive conventional design of T-squares, triangles and curves and the names of the committees in charge.

Inside the program carried a "schedule" of different dances, each designated by the nomenclature of the shop. For instance, a moonlight waltz was scheduled "Safety First" and "Superheater" was a tag twice step.

The grand march was led by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Field, who, with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Campbell, were chaperones.

The committee in charge was as follows: J. A. Hynds, chairman; J. Schreiber, E. J. Moller, E. D. Moye, A. D. Mays, William Crawford, A. A. Hayes Jr., William Crawford, was floor manager.

Lincoln Circle Entertained.

Lincoln Circle of the Ladies of the Grand Army was entertained royally at the home of the president, Armida Kensee, in Old Albuquerque Wednesday, May 17.

Members, honorary members, and friends of the circle enjoyed cards and guessing contests until delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

All present enjoyed themselves greatly as Mrs. Kensee is an accomplished hostess, with a beautiful home and grounds in which to entertain.

A prize for cards was awarded to Mrs. William Clifford while the consolation went to Mrs. Albert.

Guessing contest prize went to Mrs. J. M. McGuire while that of the "Nest" contest went to Mrs. E. E. Steiner.

A croquet prize was drawn by Mrs. A. J. Johnson.

Twenty-five attended.

St. John's Guild Tea.

The ladies of St. John's Guild entertained with a tea Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. L. Brooks on West Copper avenue. Mrs. Howden and Mrs. Hopewell presided at the prettily decorated tea table. Little Bobbi Wilson opened the door for the guests. The young ladies of St. Margaret's Guild assisted in the serving round.

For Bride-to-be.

Another charming luncheon in honor of Miss Vida Pinney, who soon to become the bride of George Bryant Jones, was a lumen shower given by Miss Louetta Bratton at her home on South Walter street this week.

The bride-to-be is a very popular teacher at the second ward school, while the prospective bridegroom is the new principal of the high school.

The Bratton home was decorated beautifully in pink and white, the colors of the bride. Games were played and dainty refreshments were served.

The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Those present were: Miss Edna McGregor, Miss Janie McCreary, Miss Jeanie Trotter, Miss Louise Wilkinson, Miss Ruth Longfellow, Miss Stella Strong, Miss Margaret Schmidt, Miss Little Keppes, Miss Ime Baker, Miss Louise Parker, Miss Anna Schupp, Miss Jane Herren.

For Suffrage Meeting.

Mrs. A. H. Stroup is entertaining members of the Tuesday club and a few other interested people at a suffrage meeting at her home on North Eleventh street this afternoon, to meet Miss Lou Walker, a suffrage leader of Pittsburgh who is here for short stay.

Woman's Club.

The meeting of the Woman's club yesterday afternoon was well attended and one of the most interesting programs of the year was given. The program, led by Mrs. Joe W. Wilson, was under the child welfare department.

Before the opening of the program Miss Walker, who is here in behalf of woman's suffrage, was introduced by Mrs. Stroup. Mrs. Walker spoke a few minutes on suffrage advocating equal rights. She emphasized the fact that there should be no "woman's party" but that they should work side by side with the men for the nation's good.

Mrs. Easterday and Mrs. Julia Brown gave some interesting facts concerning the results of the Baby Week campaign.

An instrumental quartet composed of children under the direction of Miss Valch, was especially pleasing. Little Miss Jane Hunter was the star in this performance, playing first violin in a sweet, serious childish manner which won the hearts of all present. David Marcus, the talented little Italian violinist, played the "Fifth Air" by Donizetti.

Mrs. F. K. Harden gave an interesting and instructive talk on "Ideals of Child Training," based upon a book on child training written by Luther Burbank, the "Wizard of plant life."

This was followed by a couple of songs by Miss Edna Bedell, a little lady of 16 years, who played her own accompaniments.

Mrs. Randolph Cook led a discussion on "The Moving Picture as an Educational Factor." This discussion was entered into most heartily by the mothers present.

This finished the program for the afternoon. Next Friday afternoon the closing social will be held at the club house, refreshments will be served and a musical program from B. Travers will be given.

Monday, May 22, there will be a meeting of the board at 3 o'clock at the club rooms. All chairmen and members of the board are urged to be present as important business will be discussed.

For Bride-to-be.

The pretty custom of "showering" a prospective bride with things for the home she soon is to commence to make was carried out to a marked degree for Miss Mata Tway last week and this week. Miss Mata Tway soon to become the wife of Bernard Wilkes, who is connected with the local electric company.

Last Saturday Miss Tway was guest of honor at a lumen shower given by Mrs. Roy A. Stump at her home, which was decorated prettily for the occasion. The affair was a quiet one, only a few of the more intimate friends of the bride-to-be being invited. Each guest brought an article of household linen for the honor guest and all "brought their thimbles" and spent the major portion of the day.
